Of Interest To us Not U. S.

"A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." If you want to see a one act laughing farce, attend the Council meeting. At the next meeting an official fly swatter will be appointed, a duke of the dump pile will be voted upon and the ordinance not allowing any one to climb the water tower, will be amended, allowing the militant suffragette to climb it. The boarding house of the headless horse will be inspected, as some fear he is drinking water that is not filtered. Mr. Alex Walker will be allowed 25 cents for cinders without taking it to the Supreme court as was first thought of, they will try and run in a telephone franchise by way of satisfying the ladies about the Park. After such weighty problems as these, have been given thoughtful, careful and prayerful consideration, it may dawn upon them that the health of the community is entitled to some thought and this may remind them of the filter that doesn't filter.

For lack of space we can only write up one Councilman at a time, so bring in your picture and the history of your life from the cradle to the filter that doesn't filter, and let us print it.

Our councilmen! Our gallant heroes! Our stuffers of the world! Men made of wuff Americans are made of: Thermopylae, Horatius at the bridge! "The Charge of the Light Brigade", were child's play compared with their acts of self sacrifice, bravery and noble deeds. May they live long, long as the filter that won't filter, may they grow tall, tall as the water tower that they erected to their memory on the public square and when their work is done may they draw the drapery of their couch about them and lie down to oblivion. After this fitful fever, may they sleep well. They deserve it. Pull down the blind, turn out the light, step softly, who would wake them!

Life is real, And the grave is not its goal, Rather 'tis to see which councilman, Can the Bastin 'phong control.

Wanted: A councilman to work in the interest of a corporation, the public be damned.

Wanted: The platform I ran on.
Lost: Sometime between the day I announced and the day I was elected, My platform.

Reward: A liberal reward will be given to the Central Record to hunt up my platform and print it.

Wanted: A councilman to take Wes Zanone's place and work cheek and jowl with the Bastin Telephone Co.

Wanted: Higher telephone rates to please the Bastin Telephone Co.

Wes Zanone says he was elected by the people, for the people and that he is for a square deal. No one will ever be able to fool him into granting rectangular or parallelograms on deals. He is willing to look at the wires overhead until he understands all about the "under hand" wires.

That we may do no one an injustice, it is proper to state here that Mr. H. C. Hamilton, Parker Gregory and Wes Zanone have always voted together on all question and issues brought up in the council of interest to the people and have stood solidly upon the platform on which they were elected.

This paper is not run in the interest of any boss or ring of bosses.

We are not dominated by any ill. We wear no mans collar. We are running this paper in the interest of our town and county and will ever try to serve the people in looking after their interests. When occasion arises for us to name the lowly instrument of the grave digger, we shall call it a spade and if the spade digs up or unearths anything that is of interest to the people, we will print it. We intend to be kind to the rich as well as the poor. The rich and prominent will receive as much consideration from our hands as the poor. When anything deserves mention, we will mention it.

BRYANTSVILLE

Mr. B. F. Patton was in Richmond several days last week.

Messrs. J. C. Gallaher of Lexington and Colby T. Jenkins of Georgetown, were week end guests of Messrs David and William Jenkins.

Mrs. Cynthia Dudderar died at her home at Rowland on Tuesday morning after an illness of several weeks. Her husband the late Col. Huff Dudderar died only last October. They had, at the time of his death, been married fifty seven years. Mrs. Dudderar was before marriage, Miss Cynthia Farmer, and had spent her entire life in this county. She has for many years been a faithful member of the Christian church. Services were held by Rev. D. M. Walker at the residence and the remains were laid to rest in Buffalo cemetery.

Ordinance.

The City Council of the city of Lancaster do ordain as follows: That every person, company firm, or corporation, who shall engage in the business of plumbing, shall, before so engaging, obtain from the Clerk of the Council, a license for which he shall pay to the clerk the sum of twenty five (25) dollars, which shall authorize him to carry on said business for the period of one year from the date thereof. Before any plumber shall open, or tap, any main of the water works system, for any purpose, he or they, shall obtain a permit so to do from the Superintendent of the water works, for which he shall pay to said superintendent fifty cents; and shall do the work so as to do no injury to the macadamizing of the street, and shall without delay restore the macadamizing to as good condition as before opened.

Any plumber or plumbers who shall violate any of said provisions or fail to perform any of said requirements, or shall engage in the business of plumbing without having first obtained and paid for a license so to do, shall be fined in the sum of not less than five (5) dollars and not more than twenty five (25) dollars for each offence. All money derived from this ordinance shall be paid into the water works fund.

This ordinance shall be in force from and after its passage and publication. Copy Attest

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE

RESIDENTIAL inaugurations are interesting events, especially to the man inaugurated. They are also interesting to several million office seekers, but in their case a certain poignancy whets the feeling, not unmitigated with apprehension. As for the people thronging Washington during this quadrennial festival, they are divided into two classes, local merchants and hotel keepers, and the hot polio who catch colds.

Nevertheless it is a great day. The bands play "Hail to the Chief," the militia of the various states proudly pound the pavements; the governors and their staffs come forth to dazzle the eye; the political clubs keep time to a secret refrain in the heart of each member that sounds suspiciously like "want a job, want a job." The city is brave with flags and bunting; the president elect struggles to his feet and struggles to keep his feet as he bows to the plaudits of the multitude while his carriage passes by. He delivers an inaugural address that is already in type in nearly all the newspaper offices in the country, he reviews miles of parades and shakes thousands of hands, the cannons boom, the salute, and all goes merry as a marriage bell. This is especially true of the coin that tinkles into the tills of the various hotels, stores, thrift parlors and the like. For real merriment that sound has the average marriage bell sounding like a dirge.

Speaking of the Weather.

Our inaugural ceremonies may be likened to the tree of liberty bursting into flower. Some dower—what! The only trouble is that the blossom is usually covered by the snow which our optimistic and promising weather department buds out each inauguration day. Professor Willis L. Moore promises assorted sunshine and balmy skies and calls on all the universe and the signal service to witness his good intentions. This prophecy having been duly made, telegraphed to the ends of the land and published in the papers, the weather proceeds to perform, incidentally making an assorted variety of monkeys out of the said Willis L. Moore. On the morning of inauguration day it snows. This is followed by hail, sleet, rain, wind, slush, microbes, influenza, grip, coryza, cold feet, blue lips, red noses, profanity, inebrity, doctors' bills, craps, undertakers and a frenzied agitation to change the inauguration date which comes to nothing.

It is said by some of Washington's oldest inhabitants that there have been nice inauguration days. There is even one myth to the effect that there was a mild and sunshiny 4th of March. Possibly that was at one of the inaugurations of Grover Cleveland. You can't prove it by me. So far as my knowledge and belief go, inauguration day weather in Washington usually is bad.

There have been various measures introduced in congress to change inauguration day to the end of April. They have ranged all the way from simple bills and resolutions to constitutional amendments. Whatever their form, they have all traveled through the valley of the shadow of the pigeonhole. Everybody admits that the change should be made, but that does not help the efforts to change it. People who participate in inaugural parades or look out the deadly dice go on. President Elect Wilson proposed that he be sworn in on March 4, but that the public celebration be left till later. Everybody said it was a fine proposal and then proceeded deliberately to prepare for the public ceremony on March 4. Can you beat it?

Custom is mighty and shall prevail. President Elect Wilson also suggested that he wanted a simple inaugural, without so much fuss and feathers and so many troops. Thereupon the committees in Washington got together, adopted a solemn resolution approving the idea of a simple inaugural, made various speeches telling why simplicity should prevail and then proceeded to the usual precedent and to arrange the same kind of inaugural that had been held from time immemorial.

The head of the committee in charge of the inauguration is William Corcoran Esq. of the District of Columbia and state of Virginia. Eldridge E. Jordan, a Washington bank president, is vice chairman, and Major General Leonard Wood, now the head of the army, is grand marshal. There are various subcommittees containing the names of nearly every man socially prominent in Washington. If these committees alone were to parade they would require quite some time to pass a given point. There would be the honorable committee on the comfort of visitors, the honorable committee on legislation, the honorable committee on decorations, the honorable committee on this and the honorable committee on that. All of which teaches us that the inauguration of a president of the United States is a sizable function.

A quarter of a million visitors are expected in the capital city that week. Nor will they all be looking for office. It is expected that at least the bands and the militia will have no bankers to enter the public service.

The Faithful Will Be There.
It will be a day of story for the Lancaster, Ky. For twenty years here they had an opportunity to participate in a like festival of joy. During four successive campaigns they have fought, bled and died for their country, only to have the victorious Republicans play the star parts in the inauguration parades. Will our Democratic friends permit this proud opportunity to slip now that it has come their way? Not a slip. As the Kentucky colonel remarked to the Georgia Judge: "It is a long time between Democratic inaugurations. Let us don our glad habiliments and go thereto."

All the faithful will be there, either in body or spirit. Not only so, but the good will of the whole people, regardless of party, will attend the event. No matter who elected him, the chief figure in the affair is to be president of all of us. He is our foremost representative and mouthpiece during four years. We may not agree with all his views, but we are for him nevertheless. He may like it hard boiled, but these things shall not mar our good feeling. If we do not approve his brand of government we will have a chance to whack it in four years. In the meantime let us inaugurate him in the good old way—with blare of bands and much shouting.

There will be no inaugural ball, much to the disgust of various people who wanted to dance the turkey trot, the bunny hug and other ragtime glides and wiggles, also to the dealers in white dress gloves and those who expected to sell tickets, but much to the satisfaction of the pension office, Uncle Sam and the people generally.

The proposed reception at the capitol building was also called off, since it would have entailed expense and would have kept the new president shaking hands most of the night. In place of these affairs there will be various private functions, one at the New Willard promising to be the most elaborate. If people want to dance they will have the opportunity, provided they can get an invitation.

Plenty of Red Fire.

If they do not desire to dance they can repair to the ellipse south of the White House and watch the fireworks. These will break all records. They will open by firing the national salute of 101 guns. Pictures of Wilson and Marshall and an immense American flag will be wrought in fire. There will be thousands of colored lights, batteries, candles and bombs, 100 aeroplanes and balloons and hundreds of geyers, mines, flashes, turbidions and aerolites. Red fire will be burned all along Pennsylvania avenue.

The inauguration itself will follow the due and ancient form. At about 10 o'clock the president elect will visit the White House, where he will be introduced to the committee of senators by the president. In another half hour the party will enter carriages and be driven to the capitol. Mr. Taft occupying the right hand seat in the front vehicle and Mr. Wilson sitting at his left. The president will repair to the room reserved for him in the capitol to sign bills, while the president elect goes to the vice president's room. In the senate chamber the sergeant-at-arms will push back the hands of the clock once or twice. Then the presidential party will enter; also the supreme court, diplomatic corps and other high dignitaries. The vice president will be sworn in, deliver a brief address and give the oath to the new senators. The procession will move to the temporary stand on the east portico, Chief Justice White will swear in the new president, the guns will boom the presidential salute, and the inaugural address will be delivered to as many of the throng as can hear. Then the procession will return to the White House. President Wilson now upon the right hand and ex-President Taft on the left. The long parade will be reviewed from the White House stand, the multitudes will be received, and a new administration will have begun.

All this being attended to in due and ancient form, there is but one question remaining: How would you like to be Woodrow Wilson?

Moderate Self-Confidence.
"The audiences were not very disorderly in Shakespeare's day," said the student.

"Well," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes, "you can't blame them. The authors of that day may have been able to write Shakespeare, but between you and me, I don't believe they knew how to play it."

CAUGHT.

"Johnny, won't you help me get out?"
"Ain't youse de cheap skate wot calls on sis? Well, cough up a quarter if you want yer life saved."

A Happy Girl.

The winter girl is happy now, That's her who gets giddy in the snow. The winter winds have bruised the snout Of camphor from her furs.
